IN VIRGINIA, on March 8, in a furious naval battle at Hampton Roads, the Confederate ironclad Virginia sank the Union steam frigate Cumberland, disabled the Minnesota, and captured the frigate Congress. Virginians cheered their victory with foaming steins of beer.

For even then, beer was Virginia's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for Virginians, and a good living for the employees and suppliers of the Brewing Industry.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

BLUE MOLD APPEARS IN VIRGINIA BEDS

Blue mold, a disease that can wipe out the tobacco crop if growers don't take precautions, has been reported for the first time this year in Virginia.

Plant pathologists at Virginia Polytechnic Institute say the disease is present in Mecklenburg county. Farmers are applying fungicides, but too often in a haphazard way.

The pathologists say the fact that a severe outbreak of the disease hasn't occurred for several years is no reason to react easy this year.

Control measures should be carefully followed throughout the tobacco belt. Be sure to do a complete dust or spray job. Cover each leaf on the tops and bottom sides.

Some growers will start transplanting from the beds to the fields this week and next.
